

Regional bank closures

To whom. Is in charge,

The deliberate closure of banks and other services in regional areas to force the population into cities is not working. In my area in Sydney houses are selling quickly as more people are moving to regional areas fed up with the totalitarian lockdowns .

Most people are also fed up with the private banking system and the political class selling out to global interests. If you continue to shut down services a parallel economy will ensue hopefully since demand is growing not dissipating since the lockdowns there is no longer a reason to live in cities where theatres and restaurants are constantly closed. We want a national bank for the people and all services both health and banking restored. The Australian population is not asleep any longer and even apathy has now dissipated.

I sincerely doubt anyone is listening or even cares.

Anna