

Postal Banking in Rural Area in Australia

Dear sir,

with the private banks closing branches in rural Australia and deserting people who are a major backbone to Australia's economy.

The forming of and Australia Post postal bank will give these people banking services which they need and banking close to where they live.

Australia is a developed country and banking services for everybody should be guaranteed.

I ask you to support Postal banking and recommend to the government setting up a Postal banking services is in the Public interest and in the interest for rural people in general.

RUSSELL MORSE